LEWIS BLASTS AT ROOSEVELT AND DEMOCRATS

Sees 'Ignominious Defeat' For FDR If Latter Is Renominated

NO ENDORSEMENT MADE BY MINERS

Democrats Accused of Not Keeping Faith With Labor

(By Associated Press)
COLUMBUS, Jan. 24.—John L. Lewis declared today that should the Democratic national convention "be coerced or dragged" into renominating President Roosevelt "his candidacy would result in ignominious defeat."

Lewis' statement was made unexpectedly before the United Mine Workers of America convention. He asserted it would be "unwise at this time" to make any presidential endorsements but suggested that the executive board be empowered to take up the matter at the proper time.

Fall To Keep Faith
The UMW president accused the Democratic party of "failing to keep faith with labor." He expressed belief that President Roosevelt probably would not be a candidate for renomination.

Lewis asserted that in 1936 organized labor furnished money, speakers, party workers and millions of votes to help return the Democratic party to power.

"A political coalition presupposes a post-election good faith between the coalitional interests," he added. But, he said, "the Democratic party and its leadership have not preserved its faith."

"In the last three years, labor has not been given representation in the cabinet, nor in the administrative or policy making agencies of government. The current administration has not sought nor seriously entertained the advice or views of labor upon the question of national unemployment or lesser questions affecting domestic economy, internal taxation, foreign trade, military and naval expansion, relations with foreign nations or the issues of war or peace.

No 'Point of Contact'
"Labor today has no point of contact with the Democratic administration in power except for casual occasional interviews which are granted to individual leaders. In the congress, the unrestrained baiting and defaming of labor by the Democratic majority has become a pastime, never subject to rebuke by the titular or actual leaders of the party."

Lewis asserted that the Democratic party "is in default to the American people" and that labor and the people are losing confidence.

After asserting that congress was without a program, "except to engage in time to engage in the national quadrennial political marathon," Lewis continued:

"I am one who believes that President Roosevelt will not be a candidate for re-election. Conceding that the Democratic national convention could be coerced or dragged into renominating him, I am convinced that with the conditions now confronting the nation

Another Battle In Historic York Won By Pigeons

YORK, Pa., Jan.—The pigeons in Continental square have a friend in Mrs. Gorman Blaser and well does the First National bank know it.

For ten years she has been catering to the hardy appetites of her flock right within the shadow of the bank's impressive portals.

The other day D. M. Myers, vice president of the institution, complained the birds have become so numerous "we have been unable to put the American flag out of late."

Myers appealed to Mrs. Blaser to abandon her daily routine. "Although I have sympathy for the bank," she retorted, "I have more sympathy for the birds."

Myers took his case to Mr. Blaser. "I told him it was worth $25 to us if he would influence his wife in the matter," related Myers. "He told me that as much as he needed the money, he could not ask her to do that."

He went to the mayor, who informed him there was no ordinance to prohibit the feeding of pigeons. The pigeons continue to get their grub from Mrs. Blaser and the bank has let the whole affair drop.

U.S. Potters Lash Reciprocal Pacts; Select New Chief

Advocate "Buy American" Program As Cure for Economic Ills; Rep. Bruce Barton Believes Roosevelt Will Retire Next January

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—The United States Potters association today elected new officers who opposed reenactment of the reciprocal trade agreements act and advocated a "Buy American" program as a cure of the country's economic ills.

The association named Charles Ray of Paden City, W. Va., as president to succeed Richard Pass of Syracuse, N. Y.

Ben Hardesty of Beaver Falls, Pa., was named first vice president, and R. T. Hall, Jr., of East Liverpool, Ohio, second vice president.

Comments on Third Term
Representative Barton (R., N. Y.) at a banquet last night predicted "No president ever would break the third term tradition."

The association reserved most of today's closing session for discussion of trade problems arising from the trade agreements act. Charles Sebring, chairman of the executive committee, announced that the delegates approved unanimously a report demanding repeal or drastic changes in foreign trade policies.

Pass declared in his annual report that the trade program of President Roosevelt and Secretary Hull was "fraught with danger" to all American industries and particularly to the potters who, he said, depended upon "adequate" tariff protection.

Barton predicted indirectly the retirement of President Roosevelt upon expiration of his second term next January.

"The third term discussion has arisen repeatedly in our political history," he said. "The officeholders in any popular administration are naturally reluctant to leave the payroll and the limelight for the uncertainties and obscurity of private life. They press the argument of indispensability. But when it comes right down to making a decision no president has been willing to break the tradition which has proved its prospective wisdom through the years."

"Patriotism, plus the thought of four more years in the toughest job in the world," he said, "I have no doubt that this will continue to be the case."

Newlyweds Part When Court Finds They're Blood Kin

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 24.—Two love-struck young newlyweds went their separate ways today, when told in court they evidently were brother and sister and so never before the law could be man and wife.

Leroy Williamson, 20, and Virginia Williamson, 18, married here Jan. 6, sat holding hands yesterday as juvenile Judge Wilfred Bradshaw told them recently shown they were "at least" half-brother and half-sister and the law could not recognize their union.

The judge said, though, he would not hand down his final ruling until tomorrow.

Virginia, an expectant mother, sobbed often. Her husband, himself nervously turning hat in hands, tried to comfort her.

They are wards of the court. Mrs. Crystal Clair Harker of Urbana, Ill., testified both were born here to her sister, Mrs. Helen Williamson, then unmarried.

The girl, under the name of Virginia Wolfe, was adopted by an Indianapolis family. The boy went with his mother to Michigan City where she died in 1924. He returned here last April.

His aunt's testimony drove home to him the fact he had sought to disprove by studying conflicting birth records—that he and the girl he loved were blood kin.

PREMONITION

Looking back at what seemed to happen in the United States (department of popular opinion) after President Roosevelt's recommendation for congressional action on a loan to Finland, one is able to discern an important outcropping of premonition.

Specifically, many Americans had a kind of prickly feeling they had been through all this before; that lending money to Finland wasn't much different from lending money to any other belligerent; that this was, after all, war—the thing to be avoided, if possible.

Even the taunt that the United States was afraid to help a country "fighting our battles" had a familiar sound about it. This was the appeal to manhood—the challenge to save democracy again in Europe—the taunt of cowardice. It was tempting to forget that national policy calls for strict avoidance of things that might embroil the United States—tempting to put the fate of Finland higher than the fate of the United States.

It signifies something that within a few days of its making the President's proposal was conceded slight chance of acceptance in congress. From somewhere—memory perhaps—sprang a premonition that Finland would be a tailor-made opportunity for the United States to get tangled up in Europe's newest war.

BELIEVING THE WORST

When the fine art of lying becomes the career of experts hearing dignified titles, unexpected things happen. Their job is to make people believe what their masters want them to believe, but when they work at it too hard—when they do their job too well—they fail. There comes a time when no one believes anything.

Propagandists in Germany and Russia, for instance, have not run out their string yet, but signs multiply that they are nearing the end. Though there still is no evident weakening on the home front, where otherwise uninformed people are told what to believe, eventually facts will speak louder than words.

Russia's case is typical. Recently the Soviet objected to "lies" being told abroad about the war in Finland. In the main these "lies" are accounts of Russia's lack of success. What the propagandists have been telling their customers about the war is that "nothing of importance happened today." Obviously, when red soldiers don't return, when there are no successes to report, the lie will begin to catch up with its manufacturers. The people will know that something momentous has happened. Their confidence in the art of lying as practiced under dictatorship will be extinguished forever. There is one fury "like a woman scorned"—the wrath of a people fooled.

SOMETHING ABOUT A SOLDIER

Dispatches from the Finnish war zone hint of valuable lessons being learned, even though the instruction is forbiddingly grim. Like the war in Spain, used as a proving ground for the latest equipment in mass slaughter, the Russo-Finnish war is being watched by the experts.

They noticed, no doubt, what was reported to have happened to Russian soldiers dropped from planes to land in parachutes behind the enemy's lines. The soldiers were killed by sharpshooters on their way to the ground. So much for one of the red army's most publicized ideas.

They must have noticed too what happened to motorized equipment—trucks, armored cars, tanks—in many sectors. When they failed they proved more of a handicap than tanks at all. This seems to most laymen to be the standard characteristic of military ideas men. They refuse to figure the possibilities of failure.

They undertake each new bright thought on a postulation of success, ignoring the possibility of bloomers, rarely bothering to figure out what the enemy is going to do while they are preparing to extinguish him. That parachute attack, for instance, was one of the dandiest stunts anyone ever thought up—on paper. But even pacifists wondered what was going to prevent sharpshooters from using the jumpers as targets.

LONDON LOSES A BALLOON

International experts called it "one of the most important speeches made by a British statesman since the war began" when Winston Churchill appealed to neutrals to join up with the allies in putting down Nazi-Soviet aggression.

They must have been right. The speech was made last Saturday night. On Sunday the neutrals began to register peppery objections. By Monday a "spokesman" for the British government was explaining that the first lord of the admiralty had not announced a government policy. He was just expressing one man's opinion.

This looks like one of those cases where a trial balloon is lofted to see which way the wind is blowing. If the wind isn't blowing the way that's favorable, the balloon is checked off as an experimental loss. Mr. Churchill's appeal to neutrals to join the allies wasn't received kindly.

What this means is anyone's guess. It's just one more of the minor mysteries of the puzzling things going on in Europe. Those who have been talking about European union so hopefully will have to make the most of it.

ANOTHER MOSES

Park Commissioner Robert Moses of New York City says he can lead the highway planners out of the paper wilderness they're wandering in. It might be worth trying.

The planners, subject to the weaknesses of their hobby, pay too much attention to what they think should be, at the expense of what is. When they plan highways they make them strike straight and true from place to place, forgetting what lies in between; namely, cities.

Specifically, says Mr. Moses, they waste time on cross-country projects and transcontinental speedways when they should be worrying about getting traffic through cities. Highways that attempt to avoid cities are the bunk, is his notion. "When you get away from cities you just don't have any traffic problem." That's the truth.

It has been a long time since anyone defied the pet idea of barreling to Utopia on a highway straight across the country, missing all the big towns. It's heartening to discover there's still a skeptic in the crowd.

THE STARS SAY:

For Thursday, January 25

WHILE this may be a day of excellent promise, with major interests moving at high pressure, there also are signs of sudden disruptions and upsets of devastating force. The outcome will depend upon the restraint, sagacity and acumen brought to bear on critical situations in which high objectives and interests are at stake. Through carelessness, impetuosity and over-enthusiasm there might be sharp reversals, with domestic reactions.

Those whose birthday it is, although promised a year of excellent opportunity for high attainments and fulfilled ambitions, are also likely to defeat such favorable turgies by rash, over-zealous or too strenuous modes of attack, thus precipitating drastic reversals. These may have devastating effect on the private relations. Make charges with due consideration.

A child born on this day may be efficient, energetic and ambitious, but restless or erratic tendencies may provoke its defeat, as its fine qualities may rate but mediocre success.

Varied Causes of Bad Breath Discussed By Dr. Clendening

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

What are the causes of bad breath?

(1) Decaying food particles in the mouth cavity. (2) Disease within the mouth cavity, i.e., decaying tooth, tonsil or pyorrhea. (3) Volatile substances which are absorbed from the stomach (garlic onions) get into the blood stream and which are excreted through the lungs; they may simply seep up from the stomach. (4) Nasal disease—ozena.

A method has been described by research workers by which it is possible to determine both the intensity of odors and their source; as to whether they come from the lungs, the nose or the mouth. Certain investigators believe that food particles play a relatively insignificant part. It is true, however, that onion and garlic chewed, but not swallowed, may be detected by chemical means from 60 to 72 hours after mastication. When garlic or onion is swallowed in capsule form (so that they leave no trace in the mouth), it can be detected for a considerably longer period.

Early morning, i.e., waking—bad breath is probably due to nothing more than the stagnation of mouth fluids and desquamated epithelium in the mouth.

Mustard Poultice

Is a mustard poultice of any real virtue or is it simply superstitious?

Two Japanese investigators, Hiro and Yamanda, impressed with the fact that mustard packs and mustard poultices had considerable therapeutic value, tried to find out whether this was due simply to the sense of heat and blood congestion that occurred. They took rabbits and shaved patches of hair so as to expose the skin and applied concentrated mustard packs for five minutes' duration. They found that the white blood cells were increased by this procedure.

It is known that the white blood cells have a favorable effect in combating infection. In short, the mustard poultice of our grandmothers is an effective agent for combating infection, not only because it creates comfort but because it also stimulates the forces of immunity.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pints of bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food may not digest. It may just decay in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You get constipated. You feel sour, sunk and the work looks punk.

It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pints of bile flowing freely to make you feel "up and up." Amusing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. 10¢ and 25¢. Stubbornly refuse any other.

"RED EARTH" by TOM GILL

SYNOPSIS
At Miracle Mesa, the Douglas ancestral estate near Mexico, a girl named Lola awaits the return of her fiancé, Jack Douglas, after an absence of six years. Lola is the adopted daughter of Jack's Aunt Ines. Her friend, Alison Neale, owner of the neighboring ranch, hopes Jack is the leader they are waiting for to fight the raiders. In an adobe up the trail two men also discuss Jack's return. "If you're wise you won't let Jack Douglas use two days once he comes back," says one of Jack's riders. "It's telling the world what will happen when Douglas comes back," says one. "It's time I made an appointment with Baker," the other replies.

CHAPTER II
Through the night that distant thunder rumbled nearer, and before dawn the last of the spring storms broke over the foothills. Not until darkness did the downpour give any respite to two drenched and weary riders splashing along the Verde road.

The rider in front was thick-set, with powerful legs and shoulders sitting his horse in a kind of aggressive solidity—a heavy, bearlike man. The other was taller but of slender build and he rode almost caressingly, with the instinctive assurance of a born horseman.

Suddenly the horse of the forward rider raised its head, its gait slackened as if at some message borne down the wind, and, feeling that change, the rider reined in to a halt. He cupped his hand above the storm.

"This horse hears something." They had stopped just where the road dipped over the edge of a dry arroyo, and uneasily the thick-set rider peered down the deep bank. With ears alertly forward, both horses sniffed the air, and in the same moment a sudden lull in the wind's clamor brought to their riders the deep booming of galloping hoofs from the north.

With a sharp word of warning, the burly rider pulled his companion back into the shadow of the mesquite barely an instant before a band of horsemen came tearing around the bend.

Dark and inscrutable, grimly silent, they hurried past the silent watchers just above them until once more the only sound was the rattle of desert sand before the wind.

The burly man leaned forward. "Raiders! Some rancher will find himself out of luck tomorrow morning."

"Raiders? I do not understand." "Well, you've just seen some of the outfit that's making all this valley eat out of their hand." "They are outlaws?" "You might call 'em that."

"Where do they go, these raiders?"

"Nobody knows."

"But it should be an easy thing to track so large a band, no?"

There was just the slightest trace of accent in the man's voice, a momentary deliberation of speech that gave to what he said an air of hesitation, but the things that stood out clearest of all was the arresting quality of the voice itself, an effortless resonance that seemed to hold something of the eagerness of youth and something, too, of the self-possession that comes with maturity. But now that eager quality was uppermost.

"Raiders," he repeated. "Let us follow them, Paxton. It will be exciting."

The other barked a laugh of irritation. "Not for me. Two months ago a band of raiders burned Simpson's barn. Simpson rode out single-handed to track them down. Maybe he thought it might be exciting, too. But these birds don't play that way. Ten miles from where Simpson started to trail 'em they dropped off a guard to stop any ambitious rider that might come looting along. The whole story was there in the sand. We buried Simpson where we found him."

The horseman slipped from the saddle and crouched low.

The tall man raised eloquent eyebrows. "And because one rancher has been killed, does all the border submit to a handful of raiders?"

With mounting anger Paxton turned in his saddle. "Have you had much experience with this sort of thing over in Spain, Douglas? Because if you haven't, you better take my word that here on the border it ain't a safe game."

Those eyebrows lifted even higher. "Dios," Douglas marveled, "was it then of safety we were speaking? Almost all my life have I lived in this border country, but never before have men talked to me of safety."

Paxton's face flushed. "You've been away six years, Jack Douglas—so maybe you wouldn't know that people don't accuse me of being yellow."

Without replying, Douglas had leaned forward over his horse's shoulder, his face turned intently up the arroyo, for a sharp click of stones told of the approach of yet another rider. Almost at once a dim figure galloped around the bend, coming to a halt directly beneath them, and after a second's hesitation, the horseman slipped from the saddle and crouched low in the desert sands.

Douglas remembered Paxton's words, "They drop off a guard to stop ambitious riders." So that crouching form in the shadow of the arroyo was waiting to cut down any possible pursuer? Again Douglas peered over the steep bank, but the slight figure beneath them had not moved, and in sudden decision the tall man dismounted. Two noiseless steps brought him to the very edge of the arroyo; for a single second he poised like a diver on the brink, then gathered himself and leaped. A hundred and eighty pounds of bone and muscle hurtled downward, two hands fastened on a pair of shoulders, and beneath the impact of his flying body a muffled cry cut the silence. A swirl of desert sand, another cry, and Douglas was calling, "Bring a rope!"

Frankly the two bodies rolled on the far side of the arroyo, while Paxton jerked his lariat from the saddle and scrambled down the bank.

"Fasten his legs," Douglas' mouth was gritty with sand, but his captive lay helplessly pinned beneath him. "Here is one caballero who may tell us something of his night-riding friends."

Hurriedly twirling the rope into a half-hitch, Paxton knelt beside the prostrate figure, then—the coiled rope dropped unheeded from his hand, for the muffled but unmistakable voice of a woman had pronounced the wrathful words: "You imbeciles!"

In quick consternation Paxton pulled a flashlight from his coat, and its dazzling shaft shone into the angry, upturned face of a girl.

Her thick hair was filled with desert sand and her eyes glistened in silent fury.

Paxton spoke. "It's—Alison Neale." (To be continued.)

Music Study, Book, Travelers Clubs Enjoy Review Of Book

Mrs. Mowry J. Hannal of Youngstown, well known book reviewer and woman's club speaker, delightfully reviewed Susan Eriz' new book, "One Fight More," at the annual joint meeting of the Salem Music Study, Book and Travelers clubs at the library yesterday afternoon.

Mrs. Edgar F. Miller of Columbiana, president of the music study group, presided. The program was arranged by the Book and Music clubs.

Musical entertainment included a piano solo, "Feux-Follets" (Philip), played by Miss Emma Bauman, and two vocal solos, "The Lord's Prayer" (Mellott), and "If God Left Only You" (Densmore), Miss DeEria Smith of Leetonia, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Stanley J. Shoemaker of Leetonia.

The book review by Mrs. Hannal, written in the warm, human style which characterizes many of Miss Eriz' books, concerns one family, the head of which is Grandfather Darrell. A New England farm boy who rose to manufacturing power and wealth without losing the common touch, Grandfather Darrell influences the lives of his three daughters and their children.

The oldest daughter, Lydia, whose happy marriage was cut short by the death of her husband, leading her to take up work for less fortunate people than herself, remains at the family home with Grandfather.

Georgina, the middle daughter in age and temperament, marries an Englishman and goes to his country to make her home. Christine, the other daughter, a completely loveless, selfish woman, marries a titled Frenchman and revels in the artificial, empty life of the French capital. Family situations are all straightened out when the family is called home for a visit with Grandfather Darrell.

Mrs. Cameron, leader of the topic, "Mental Growth and Development," presented an interesting paper outlining the most important physical and emotional habits, in the formation of which heredity and environment play a great part.

As the child develops, various physical and mental processes are noted. Honesty is learned through imitation and daily contact with truthfulness. Obedience, acquired without fear of punishment, brings a child the correct mental attitude toward life. Jealousy, not inherited, but usually the result of faulty training, complicates his attitude toward life. Love, the most important emotional habit, is a sense of well-being coming from the treatment of others.

The place for the Feb. 13 meeting has not been set. Mrs. Michael Schuller will be leader of the study topic, "Teaching Children the Value and Use of Money."

An executive board meeting will be held Friday night at the home of Mrs. Goida Bumbaugh, president, on South Union ave.

A new visiting committee was appointed as follows: Mrs. Charles Kennedy, Mrs. Everett Rich, Mrs. W. J. Seaman and Mrs. Bumbaugh. A report of recent community service was given.

The next session will be held Feb. 13.

Bide-a-wee Members Are Entertained

Miss Betty Holwick was hostess to members of the Bide-A-Wee club at her home on North Lincoln ave. last evening.

Following an evening of bridge, lunch was served by the hostess. A birthday gift committee composed of Bernice Matthews, Betty Cooper and Mrs. Wesley Kille was appointed.

The next meeting will be held on Feb. 6 at the home of Miss Bettie Ruth Lewis, Jennings ave.

Members of Cara Nome Club Convened

Mrs. T. S. Layden and Mrs. Philip Schmid were guests of Cara Nome club members at the home of Mrs. Katherine Hiddleston on Aetna st. last night.

Bridge prizes during the evening were won by Miss Ann LaLaughlin, Mrs. Joseph Potts and Mrs. Schmid. Lunch was served at the card tables.

The place and date for the next meeting have not been set.

Party Will Be Held At Library

A benefit card party at 2 p. m. Friday, planned for the home of Mrs. Ralph Sturgeon on South Lincoln ave., by members of the Harriet Watt guild of the Church of Our Saviour, has been changed to the library assembly room.

True Blue Class Will Convene

True Blue class of the Presbyterian church will meet at 8 p. m. Thursday at the home of Miss LaVaughn Simpson, Franklin st.

There will be a special program. The Forum class of the church is invited to attend.

Catholic Daughters Sew for Hospital

Catholic Daughters of America will sew for the City hospital at 2 p. m. Thursday at the home of Mrs. Clifford Strabley, W. State st.

Mrs. Harry Anderson of Havre, Mont., left today for her home after a week's visit with her aunt, Mrs. Emma Speidel, of Woodland ave.

The recordings were Beethoven's "Moonlight Sonata" and "Symphony No. 5 in C Minor". Lunch was served by the hostess during the social hour which followed the program.

Out Again, In Again

HUNTINGTON, W. Va.—The milk of human kindness has soured a bit for Detective W. R. Byrd.

LEWIS BLASTS AT ROOSEVELT

Sees 'Ignominious Defeat' For FDR If Latter Is Renominated

and the dissatisfaction now permeating the minds of the people his candidacy would result in ignominious defeat."

Sees Republican Trend

The CIO chieftain said that Illinois, Ohio, Indiana, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and New York were "trending toward the Republican column in the campaign year of 1940."

"This trend," he added, "can be corrected and the Republican party prevented from winning only by an accord between the Democratic party and organized labor, and the adoption of an intelligent and rational program to be written into the platform of the Democratic party and placed before the American people as the issues of the election. Even then guarantees of good faith and fulfillment of party promises would have to be made to labor and the people by responsible Democratic leaders."

Lewis also declared that the Democratic party after seven years "finds itself without solution for the major questions of unemployment, low national income, mounting internal debt, increasing direct and consumer taxation and restricted foreign markets. There still exists the same national unhappiness that it faced seven years ago."

McCOY FIGURES TO GET $40,000

Youthful Star Is Getting Attractive Offers From Clubs

CHICAGO, Jan. 24.—A half dozen or so big league baseball clubs are engaged in a sociable, little game of "cut-throat" these days and young Benjamin McCoy is very happy about it all.

The club that wins the game will get McCoy, 21, an infielder by trade, and McCoy probably will get close to $40,000 and a five-figure contract for the 1940 season.

McCoy's fortunate position was not of his own making. Detroit mishandled the youth in its farm operations and Commissioner K. M. Landis found out about it. The commissioner made a free agent of him along with 90 other Detroit hirelings.

So now McCoy sits by a newly-installed telephone in his Grandville, Mich. home and carries on negotiations with would-be employers. The commissioner ruled none of the free agents could sign with any club until 15 days after his ruling.

Far Three Clubs

Put after Sunday McCoy can hook up with any major league club except Detroit, the Chicago Cubs or St. Louis Browns. Landis' edict banned Detroit from negotiating with any of its former players and barred the Cubs and Browns because they "meddled" with McCoy before he was made a free agent.

Connie Mack, manager of the Philadelphia Athletics, said yesterday he wanted and needed McCoy so badly that he would top any other offer. Pittsburgh was reported as offering McCoy $35,000 to sign, about $5,000 more than was offered by the New York Giants. Washington Senators and Brooklyn Dodgers.

McCoy informed the Chicago White Sox yesterday that he wanted in the neighborhood of $40,000 to sign and a three-year contract at $10,000 per season.

Last year was his first with Detroit. He played 55 games at second base when Charley Gehring was injured, batting .302, scoring 38 runs and getting 58 hits for 83 bases.

WEST PLAINS, Mo.—Harold Judd, 22, has had his shoulders dislocated so many times he didn't even awaken when he turned over in bed the other night and the right shoulder slipped out of joint. It was the third such accident to the right shoulder, bringing it up to the record set by the left.

SALEM CAGERS BOOST RECORD ON FOUL SHOTS

Make 17 of 28 Throws in Last Two Basketball Contests

The Quakers made 17 of 28 foul shots in winning games over East Palestine and Youngstown South last Friday and Saturday nights. They converted four of six chances in the East Palestine game and 13 out of 22 in the Youngstown South contest.

Their improved performance in the two games enabled them to jump their season's foul shooting record to a new high of 503 per cent. In nine games they have made 74 free throws, missed 73.

Knapp Improves
Center Les Knapp, who had the poorest foul shooting record among the regulars last week, showed the greatest individual improvement over the weekend, making four free throws and missing none in the two games. The perfect weekend raised Knapp's foul shooting percentage from 375 to 444.

Forward Bob Shue, who had the best free throw record among the regulars last week, dropped to the bottom of the list when he made only one of six foul shots in the two games. His percentage for nine games is 400.

Guard Glenn (Dinty) McLaughlin hopped his percentage to the even 500 mark by converting two out of three charity shots while Guard Bob Umberger turned in a like performance to boost his record from 533 to 563 per cent.

Forward Dick Jaeger, who replaced Jimmy Kleon in the varsity lineup in the two games, made four out of seven free throws, but his foul shooting record for the season dropped from 667 per cent to even 600.

Mike Thomas, who has served as sixth man to the varsity five in recent games, improved his foul shooting record by converting three out of four shots against Youngstown South. Thomas boasts a 522 percentage.

Bob Ritchie, second string guard, who saw a brief bit of action in the South game, maintained his perfect record by scoring on the only free throw offered him. Ritchie has had two free throws in six games, has made both of them.

Leads Scoring
In addition to showing the greatest improvement in foul shooting, Center Knapp replaced Thomas as the team's leading scorer. A 17-point spurge against Youngstown South increased Knapp's scoring for the season to 60 points, eight better than Thomas, who now ranks second.

The blonde-thatched pivot man has scored more field goals than any other player, making 22 in nine games, and is equal to McLaughlin in scoring free throws with 16 foul shots to his credit.

Thomas has made 20 field goals and 12 free throws, while McLaughlin is third high in scoring with 15 field goals and 16 foul shots. Shue ranks fourth with 16 field goals and six free throws.

The Quakers are scheduled for only one game this week after completing a heavy schedule of six games in three weeks. They will meet Warren Harding High's Presidents here Friday night in their tenth game of the current season.

Single assignments also face the Quakers for the next two weeks with Pittsburgh Peabody scheduled to play here Friday, Feb. 2, and East Liverpool booked to appear here Friday, Feb. 9.

The East Liverpool game will be the last for McLaughlin, who becomes 20 years of age Feb. 11. An Ohio High School Athletic association ruling prohibits athletes from competing in scholastic sports after they reach the age of 20.

CARROLL SQUAD TIED FOR LEAD WITH SANITARY

Comets Defeat O.S.E.S. to Gain First Place Tie in Class A

The Carroll Comets moved into a tie for the leading position in the Class A basketball league's third round last night, scoring their second victory of the round as they defeated the Ohio State Employment Service, 35 to 31, at the Memorial building.

The win kept the Comets' third round record clean and placed them in a first-place deadlock with the National Sanitary.

Gaining a six-point lead in the third quarter after a close first-half battle, the Comets remained out in front in the final period to defeat the O. S. E. S. for the first time.

Raynes Leads Scoring
The Comets led 8-7 and 17-6 at the end of the first and second quarters, respectively, and were out in front 28-22 at the close of the third period. Clay Raynes hooped five field goals and four free throws to lead the Carroll scoring with 14 points.

Roberts Men's Shop passers gained their first win of the third round and their fifth victory of the season in the other Class A game, topping Althouse Motors, 48 to 42.

The Men's Shop led throughout the contest, although the Motors threatened in the second and third quarters. Roberts cagers were out in front 16-8 at the end of the first quarter, 23-18 at halftime and 35-38 at the end of the third period.

Hitting consistently from the pivot position, Bill Schaeffer paced the Roberts, scoring with 18 points.

Class B Race Tied
The first round race in the Class B league became dead-locked again as the Carroll Cadets defeated the "T" Club, 38 to 22, to tie the Baptists for the leading berth. Both the Cadets and Baptists have won seven games, lost one.

The Cadets enjoyed safe margins of 10-5, 22-8 and 27-13 at the end of each of the first three periods. Jack Hickling's 11 points led the scoring.

Rudibaugh's Sohloans staved off a second-half rally by the Trades Class to register a 31-to-29 victory in the other Class B game. The Sohloans led by five points at halftime, but had their margin sliced to two points in the third period.

Patty Berg Working Hard To Regain Winning Form

PONTE VEDRA BEACH, Fla., Jan. 24.—Seven months of absence from tournament golf, enforced by an appendectomy just before the national championship last summer, seems to have taken little from the game of red-haired, freckle-faced Patty Berg.

The sturdy little Minneapolis fairway queen, who in a short span of years has won more than a share of trophies ranging downward from the big cup emblematic of the United States national, stopped by here enroute to Miami and her first tournament competition since she won the Trans-Mississippi last June.

"I'm working hard on my game," she remarked. "You can't tell, though, how you'll go after a long layoff. I've played well in practice, but tournament golf is a different matter."

Accompanied by her father, Patty planned to make the Miami-Biltmore tournament here next Monday, her first port of call in a winter circuit swing that will keep her on the go until April 1. She will be seeking her fifth Miami-Biltmore title.

JACOBS WORRIES OVER ARMSTRONG
Mike Won't Be Happy Until Henry Gets Into Ring Tonight

NEW YORK, Jan. 24.—Mike Jacobs, mayor of Broadway's mittville, usually can promote a prize fight without being bothered by a nervous breakdown, but for the past 24 hours he has been as shaky as a hula dancer.

Henry, with only a single crown left of the three he once had lanced on his head, will battle Pedro Montanez in Madison Square Garden tonight in a 15-round defense of his welterweight title—if something doesn't happen to him beforehand.

The Little Negro champion has a faculty for getting into a mess before he is supposed to climb into a ring. For example, Jacobs recalls, he dislocated his sacro-iliac the day before the Cefirino Garcia match. Then he caught a bad cold before the Lou Ambers bout. And once he hurt his hands in training and couldn't go through with another scheduled scrap.

Never Certain
"I never feel certain that I'm putting on a fight with Armstrong in it until I see him crawl through the ropes," Mike cracked. "That's why I had to threaten to close the box office if he went through a planned training routine today. He'd have probably been hit by a falling cross-beam."

The bookies aren't afraid. They have made Henry the 1-3 shot to make a successful defense of his title the 15th time he has put it in jeopardy.

And the followers of fistiana apparently aren't very much concerned over the fact Henry looks "too good" to fight. At least some 16,000 of them are expected to witness the battle, and pay some $50,000 for the fun.

Montanez doesn't seem afraid either. He is in great shape, ready to aim at Henry's mid-section and come out like a windmill, following the formula that has gained him most of his notable ring triumphs in a series wherein he has lost only two of his last 54 fights.
